About Us

“

Robert Parker

Talamonti is one of my favorite producers in Abruzzo in terms of value and price. The style of winemaking is very consistent and readily offers great bang for your buck.

Wine Enthusiast

Abruzzo's winemaking tradition dates back centuries. Here's an excellent value from central Italy!

Wine Spectator

Abruzzo makes distinctive whites worth seeking out, particularly from the two flagship local varieties, Trebbiano and Pecorino. Alfredo and Antonella di Tonno offer great value with these two grapes.

An Authentic Terroir

Home to some of Italy's finest extra-virgin olive oil and wines, the Medieval village of Loreto Aprutino is rich in history, culture and authentic traditions. The earliest evidence of grape growing in the area is found in Pliny the Elder's Natural History, where the early naturalist and Roman philosopher wrote about a vine, and referred to our Trebbiano d'Abruzzo as vinum trebulanum. The Tavo valley is internationally recognized for producing Abruzzo's first bottle of Montepulciano d'Abruzzo DOC and Italy's first DOP extra-virgin olive oil.

Stewardship of our Land

We aim to give the term “sustainability” a clear focus and a concrete meaning. It is more than simply an aspiration or mission. It is our lifestyle. Our family protects and nurtures a unique terroir to passionately craft iconic wines. All our wines are certified sustainable by the Integrated Crop Management National Quality System, SNQPI. Our mission continues with the future creation of a zero-carbon estate and improvement of our energy savings, waste reduction and conservation. Solar and Wind energy are exclusively utilized.

The Family

We have been raised with great respect for family values. Ancient rural civilizations, with their strong ties to nature, always reveal the importance of a family approach to sustainable growth, paying great attention to the management of land, production, people and our customers while creating an iconic wine.

Talamonti was founded by the Redmont-Di Tonno family in a magnificent, unspoilt part of the Central Italian region of Abruzzi. Antonella and Rodrigo set out to make a premium, yet affordable Italian wine with the commitment of sustainable winemaking and agriculture.

The Estate

Founded in 2001, the Estate lies at an altitude between 200 to 400 meters above sea level, extending over an area of 45 hectares under vine and olive groves on steep south-facing slopes. The Gran Sasso and the Majella mountain ridges shield the estate from harsh weather and thus helps to provide Talamonti with a unique micro-climate in which to produce its famous Montepulciano d'Abruzzo, Trebbiano d'Abruzzo and Pecorino. Our daily objective lies in constantly seeking the best interaction between the varietal in our vineyards, the sun-exposition, the training methods, and the desired yield with the sole desire to best express our unique terroir.
